

Hi Gough.

Hopefully this fax makes it through. Project Fax is an interesting initiative and I hope that you receive more faxes soon.

It's funny how long faxes have lasted in this digital age, isn't it? You know, technology that was first demonstrated in 1843 is still alive in a world where many people replace their phone every two years. I guess fax is a bit like AM radio in the way that it's still being used quite regularly even when there are technically superior alternatives. I wonder how long DSL will last...

Anyway, this was a fun experiment for me. I haven't sent a message to someone by fax before because I grew up with mobile phones and email so I guess this is both a way for me to give it a nice wave goodbye and be able to say "I remember sending someone a fax" in a few years when it's died out completely.

Have a nice day :)
